HARTFORD WEEKLY HERALD.

*S. O. BARRETT, Publ. and Prop.
JNO. O'FLAHERTY, Editor.*

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 1.

CLOSE observers are beginning to see as much whisky on our side, as on the other.

INFIDELITY and falsehood will not prove effective in driving the people from Robertson.

JOHN NAYE's statement is believed by a majority of the people of the district; Sutton's is not.

JUDGE MONTGOMERY slept with Mr. Robertson, two years ago, in Coryville. Why does not the Judge speak?

The noise about Robertson is more likely to divert public attention from his adversary's method of obtaining other people's papers.

Why did Mr. Montgomery run away from Bardstown to Elizabeth-town, and leave the coast open to Robertson? Is there danger in Har-din?

ALL statements to the contrary, the Bankers' verdict on the check business is a death knell on Judge Montgomery's Congressional prospects.

JUDGE MONTGOMERY can settle the Bardstown matter. He occupied the same room with Robertson, slept in the same bed with him. He knows whether it is true or false, let him speak.

There is no question between the HARTFORD HERALD and Mr. John M. Johnson, of Coryville. The HERALD gives Mr. John H. Nave's statement, which statement says he will swear to, in any court.

Bardstowners can challenge comparison with any one who has had the honor to represent this district, as to his ability to do good work for the people. The comparison will reflect favorably on Robertson's side.

THE question is to whether Robertson is to be sent back or of no importance to the voters of this county, indeed, to the voters of the whole district. He has proved himself a laborious and faithful representative, always ready and willing to answer the slightest call made upon him by his people.

THERE was not a member of the last session of Congress, who commanded more respect and confidence than the representative of the Fourth Congressional District of Kentucky. Who is not reason why a man no more complicated, no better morally, mentally or socially, married and absolutely inexperienced, should be put in his place.

JUDGE MONTGOMERY drafted the prohibition law which now is in operation in Hardin County. When it came to a vote on that question he found it convenient to dodge. The gentleman did not vote. In that election, and still he is the sine-qua non held up to the people of this county. Send him to Congress and he will design the first important matter which presents itself.

JUDGE MONTGOMERY when in Bardstown invited a large crowd into the bar-room, and treated every person present, not forgetful to drink with them himself. This is the man who held up in Ohio country as being very perfect to be a model of a statesman. We are informed that he did. We are also informed that he did the same thing at Sulphur Springs, this community, when last there. It would seem that on the whisky question, however, he was easy.

For twenty years we have been endeavoring to get mail lines and post-offices in that part of the country between here and White-lane. We never succeeded until John A. Robertson got to Congress. He has cursed two lines through that section, which was horse-trail wholly without mail facilities. Will not the Democratic voters in that part of the community remember this, and their appearance by voting for Robertson in the primary next Saturday?

The Giles County Democrat, published in Pulaski, Tenn., by Col. J. G. Ford, formerly of Owensboro, more recently of Baraboo, Wisconsin, is before us. Col. Ford is well known in Hartford, and it may be of some interest to his many friends and acquaintances to learn that his present newspaper venture promises a full measure of success. The Giles County Democrat is a large, eight-page paper, ably edited, neat in appearance, and we wish it abundant streams of gold.

CONCEDING, for argument sake, that Robertson pays for work done for him, it is an open secret that Montgomery is also very liberal, by no means chary in distributing his funds. The effect of such distribution is very perceptible, nor is this the only occasion on which Judge Montgomery has deemed it wise to dispose of a portion of his means to secure an election; such charges against Robertson are mere vapors, when it is remembered that they may just as well be made against his competitor.

The committees appointed at the recent railroad meeting should be ready to report next week. This matter should be neglected no longer, the sooner the facts are in the hands of the chairman, Hon. H. D. McHenry, the sooner will he be able to submit them to Mr. C. P. Huntington, and the sooner shall we know that general's ultimate policy is of vital importance, not only to Hartford but to the entire country. The scheme includes Fordsville and all that section from Fordsville to Cloverport.

MR. PARTRIDGE's reply to the Queen's speech was moderate, able and statesmanlike. He closed by saying that the Irish people would never submit to a government not theirs. Mr. Gladstone followed him, and the audience could not understand a word of what he said.

His next step was to locate the authorship in the Marshal's office in Louisville, another signal failure was his reward. Gross and Grinnell were singly and jointly charged with being the authors. The former failed to impress the Judge, and the latter was not even mentioned. Mr. Partridge followed him, and the audience could not understand a word of what he said.

He was evidently better qualified to locate the authorship in the British Parliament, without a subsequent arrest, is an evidence of the British Parliament's great influence.

Among prohibitionists he was loud in his denunciations of the liquor traffic, and as well known, he was a buster around the bar-rooms. Not content with these exhibitions of campaigning skill, he charged upon the press of the district that it was subsidized to his injury. Acting on this idea, he perpetrated an official act which will cling to him long after his other tricks are forgotten. He stops, in transit, a private paper, the property of another, and appropriates it to his own use and benefit. This is a ghost that will not be quieted, whether he is elected or defeated.

We have been frequently, and reluctantly informed, that Judge Montgomery is a drunkard. That if he stopped drinking he would secure favorable legislation for them. As a last trick, old campaign lies have been revived, and the only change now against Robertson, is that, occasionally he gets drunk. Montgomery's friends having nothing else to say, charged that Robertson was drunk at the hotel in Leitchfield. The report was studiously circulated. The proprietor of the hotel, Mr. Thos. Heyer, pronounced it a lie in all respects, declaring that Mr. Robertson, at the hotel did not drink a dram. Thus every fiction disappears: the people will elect Robertson.

TO THE PUBLIC.

It seems to be the disposition of certain parties to lug every personal matter possible into this canvas.

On account of my connection with the HERALD, and on account of the stand taken by the HERALD, I am made the subject of criticism because of my indecisions. In relation to that fact, I have that to say:

IT IS TRUE that I am in debt. It is true that I cannot pay my debts.

It is true that this is the case.

Every claim against me is, so far as I know, an honest one.

I have never denied a debt. I have, which I regret, failed on several occasions to pay, from no inclination to do so, but from utter inability.

My object in becoming connected with the HERALD was, and is, that of giving the paper to the other districts. The Democrats of this district are a powerful force, and next tell us why you put into a Democratic fight and to preju-de Democratic voters against Robertson, who holds such high positions by the united voices of the Senators and Congressmen from Kentucky? Who is not reason why a man no more complicated, no better morally, mentally or socially, married and absolutely inexperienced, should be put in his place.

TO THE PUBLIC.

It seems to be the disposition of certain parties to lug every personal matter possible into this canvas.

On account of my connection with the HERALD, and on account of the stand taken by the HERALD, I am made the subject of criticism because of my indecisions. In relation to that fact, I have that to say:

IT IS TRUE that I am in debt. It is true that I cannot pay my debts.

It is true that this is the case.

Every claim against me is, so far as I know, an honest one.

I have never denied a debt. I have, which I regret, failed on several occasions to pay, from no inclination to do so, but from utter inability.

My object in becoming connected with the HERALD was, and is, that of giving the paper to the other districts. The Democrats of this district are a powerful force, and next tell us why you put into a Democratic fight and to preju-de Democratic voters against Robertson, who holds such high positions by the united voices of the Senators and Congressmen from Kentucky? Who is not reason why a man no more complicated, no better morally, mentally or socially, married and absolutely inexperienced, should be put in his place.
